A PASSENGER ON THE BOLIVIA DIES FROM FRIGHT-THE CRAFT COVERED WITH ICE. The engines of the Anchor Line steamer Bolivia slowed down last Wednesday and a canvas-covered bundle fell heavily from her decks into the sea. 15 was a sad day on board when the body of Elizabeth Wright was consigned to the waves. She was only a second-cable passenger, but somehow the story of her death touched the heart of every one on board.

The Bolivia sailed from Glasgow on February 4, with passengers and a general cargo. From the time she left the coasts of Scotland until she touched at quarantine her trip was a terrible experience for the people huddled below decks. The waves rose mountain high, and swept the decks fore and aft, and terrific gales sent the vessel careening and lurching on her course. On February 20 the winds and squalls hurled themselves at the big steamer, and the waves bent against her sides until the great from hull vibrated and trembled under the hammer-like The tey waters carried away everything not

The passengers, most of whom had never before seen the sea at its worst, were almost prostrated through fear. A number of them were sitting around a table below, when a man was called to inform the captain that it was time to take the observations. Elizabeth Wright was sitting there, pale and trembling, and next to her was a coarsefeatured woman.

"They've come to tell us to get into the lifeboats," cried the woman, seizing the girl by the arm and pretending to be frightened. The young girl turned deathly pale and fainted away. When she recovered from her fainting spell her reason had almost gone. The stewardess, Mrs. Reed, said that she never saw such a terror-stricken look on a human face before. Elizabeth Wright went to her room, screaming and sobbing. She never left it alive.

Mrs. Reed tried in every way to make her believe that there was no danger, and Captain Baxter watched over her whenever his duties did not call him, and assured her that the perils of the voyage had passed. On the noon of the 21st her delirium had reached its height, and at 4 p. m. she died. On her white face was still u wild, hunted expression, and in her eyes terror-stricken stare. On the next day the body of the dead girl was prepared for buriat. The simple service for the dead was recited by the captain, and the body was lowered into the sea. There were sad faces and streaming eyes on the Bolivia that day, and many an eld seaman brushed his sleeve over eyes strangely dimmed.

After passing Nantucket the Belivia met better She reached this port yesterday, eight days The ship usually makes her trip in twelve fourteen days, and in summer she has come from Glasgow to New-York in eleven days.

The France, of the National Line, which reached port yesterday several days overdue, reported rough weather, and the Lepanto, of the Wilson Line, which weather, and the Lepanto, of the Wilson Line, which also arrived yesterday, had encountered many gales and storms during her passage of twenty-two days from Hall. The steamer Croft, from Leith, which reached the bar late yesterday afternoon, was buffeled by gales, heavy squalls and hall showers. Near St. John's, heavy squalls and hall showers. Near St. John's, N. F. she passed through fields of Ice many miles in extent. After leaving the harbor of St. John's, where she put in for coal, she had to plough through lee in the teeth of a terrific gale. Her decks were covered with ice over a foot in thickness.

The Noordland, of the Red Star Line, is overdue. She should have arrived here last Wednesday.

The Taormina has been buffeting the storms since February 2. There are a number of tramp steamers which have been out many days beyond their usual time, but their schedules are always irregular.

THE EGERIA SAFE IN PORT.

WITH A CARGO OF MARBLE LOOSE IN HER HOLD, SHE NEARLY FOUNDERED AT SEA.

A sorry-looking craft was the bark Egeria, which has been wandering along the coast since last Sunday, when she was towed into port vesterday morning. The Egeria was being towed from Na-sau, N. P., when she lasted from her tug, the R. C. Veit. She salled from Leghorn with a cargo of Carrara marble loosely stowed, and with a few bales of rags for In a gale she lost some sails and her cargo shifted. She put into Nassau for repairs. cargo shifted. She put into Nassau for repairs. On February 14 she began her journey to this port in tow of the R. C. Veit. A terrific gale swept the seas on February 19. The hawser connecting the vessels broke and left the Egeria adrift off the New-Jersey coast. The R. C. Veit lost all trace of her tow and came back to New-York without her. The Egeria drifted for thirty miles in a helpless condition. me of the blocks of marble broke loose, and went crashing against the side of the vessel.

As the heavy masses went thundering through the old it seemed to the crew that the vessel was doomed. The bark sprung a lenk and the crew worked night and day at the pumps. The men were badly frostbitten by their exposure, as the seas broke over the decks and froze as it fell. The Egeria lost most of her canvas, but she set her few remaining sails and headed eastward. Yesterday at 6 a. m. she was found neaded castward. Yesterday at 6 a. m. she was found by the tug C. A. Evarts, which had gone in search of her, and towed into port. The tug J. H. Wise ap-peared a few moments later. The owners of the Wise will claim a part of the salvage money, as they say that they sent out the Wise under contract to find the Egeria.

FOUNDERED IN A HURRICANE.

THE BARGE GOVERNOR SUDDENLY SINKS WITH FOUR MEN ON BOARD,

In a hurricane off the Virginia coast the barge Governor went to the bottom last Sunday, with all hands on board. She carried 1,100 tons of coal, and was being towed, in company with the coal barges Rondout and Milton, by the tug L. Lucken-bach, from Newport News, Va., to New-York. She was the last barge in the tow, and was connected with the Rondont by a 150 fathom hawser. Thirty miles off the coast of Chincoteague she was struck by a tremendous gale from the northwest, and high seas swept over her from stem to stern. At 10 o'clock a. m. she sank without giving a signal of distress, breaking the hawser which connected with the Rondout as she went down. The four men on board made no outcry. For two hours the tug steamed about the spot where the barge disappeared. A mass of wreckage floated on the surface, but there was no sign of the crew of the barge. It is sup-posed that the waves broke in the decks of the Govposed that the waves broke in the decas of in-ceptain and filled her with water, sinking her before any aid could reach her. The men lost were the captain, William Raesmus, his two brothers, and one unknown seaman. The Governor was originally a bark, and was built at Pince Edward Island in 1877. She was 146 feet long, and 33 feet beam. She was schooner rigged.

The schoener William Everett, of Greenport, loaded with brick and owned by the Long Island Brick Company, was caught in the lee-floe-she now is in a dangerous position off Niajors Flats. Her crew had to abandon her.

CLEAR WATER IN THE BAY ONCE MORE.

The grip of the ice giant upon the waters was n yesterday, and the bay and harbor will soon be emancipated from his thrall. All day there was a thawing temperature, and the green water emerged from its covering of ice floes. The scraping of the shovel and the rumble of carts was heard all over the city. The snow and slush was pushed off the ends of the piers, where it began to dissolve under the influence of the warm air and the latent heat of the water. There were a few flurries of snow yesterday, which continued only a few moments, and then retreated before the forces of the sunlight and warmth.

The rivers are being cleared, and navigation is much easier than it has been for the last week. Only one ferry line was blocked. It was the line which nects New-York and Bay Ridge. Early in the morning the North River ferryboats Lad some adventures in the ice. The Secaucus broke several of her paddle blades, and floundered about for two hours before she landed her passengers. The ferryboat Elizabeth took so much lee that it had to be melted from her paddle boxes by means of steam. The iman, which was stuck in the ice on Vednesday, is again at her work. She is like a hale part in the sports of the arena. The South Brooklyn lerryboats were making their usual trips yesterday. The Sound boats were delayed several hours by the running ice, while the gay and giddy Shuckamaxon attended to business at the old stand, as though ice had never been heard of.

GLOWN FROM SANDY HOOK TO NEWPORT. Newport, R. I., Feb. 24.—At a late hour last night the tug Aquidneck towed into this harbor the schooner Edna, of Columbia Falls, Me., sugar-laden, from San Domingo, W. I., for New-York. She was picked up in Dutch Island harbor incased in ice, and with her sails torn, having experienced a series of gales and hurricanes during her entire trip. On Sunday night she was off Sandy Hook and anchored, intending to

She did not finally make harbor again until yesterday, and in the mean time encountered the most severe weather that Captain Donovan had ever seen. The crew are badly frostbitten and have been taken to the hospital.

COMMISSIONER BRENNAN'S HAPPINESS.

Commissioner Brennan was happy yesterday over his interview with Richard Croker at Tammany Hall on Thursday afternoon. The subject they discussed was the street cleaning. "I think you are doing as well as any mun could," said Mr. Croker to Mr. Brennan.
This language of the Big Chief was interpreted in official circles to mean that the report that he was going to "put the screws to Brennan" was groundless. Mayor Gilroy did not take this optimistic view of the Commissioner's work a couple of weeks ago. It is said that the Mayor's delicate hint that the power to remove the Commissioner of Street Cleaning rested solely with him had something of an effect on Mr. Brennan and his immediate subordinates. At least 100 incompetent and useless employes have been dismissed and Mr. Brennan has continued a weeding-out

No scows got out to sea yesterday, owing to the ice floating in the rivers. The Commissioner set 350 men and 200 carts and drivers to work on the snow men and 200 carts and drivers to work on the snow in Chambers, Barclay, Dey, Liberty, Cortlandt and other streets below the City Hail last night. The Commissioner visits all the gangs after nightfall, often keeping up his tour of inspection until the last of the men stop work. When they see him coming they begin with one accord to cry out, "Hirry up-nil 'em up," and work like Trojans. But as soon as Mr. Brennan is out of sight it is different.

TWO MEN SWEPT OVERBOARD AND THROWN BACK.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 24.-The schooner Israe T. Campbell, of Boston, with coal for this port from Baltimore, arrived here yesterday afternoon. The captain reports that on Monday morning, while off Hog Island, a squall struck the vessel with terring force, and it was found necessary to shorten sail and lay to. While occupied in furling the jib the mate, Charles Olson, age 29, of Boston: George Lawrence, a seaman of Bangor, Me., and two other seamen were swept overboard, and Olson and Law-rence were drowned, the other men being thrown back on the vessel by a heavy sea.

THE MORAVIA PUTS INTO HALIFAX FOR COAL. Halifax, N. Mrs. G. G. Devide, of No. 31 West Twenty seventh st., is an enthusiastic philanthropist in the interest of cats. She also pities the poor horses attached to Mr. Brennan's street-cleaning carts. Sho went to see Mayor Gilry yesterday, but he was presiding at a board meeting, and she wrote the Mayor a letter in which she said:

"There are thousands of starving and homeless cats forming the streets at night. In their misery they long for death, and do not know how to kill themselves.

"In their hunger and misery they often fight and cry all night. It would be an act of Christian charity and humanity to establish a pound where "I hope, Mayor Gilroy, that you will be God's instrument to answer my prayer for the poor homeles and helpless cats. Please have a cat pound opene at once."

OPPOSING MR. HEINTZ'S PLAN.

A public hearing was held by the Board of Street Opening yesterday on Commissioner Heintz's new street map of a part of the Annexed District, the section bounded by Gun Hill road on the north, Web-ster-ave, and the New-York and Harlem road on the east, the Harlem River on the south, and Jeromeave, and another street unnamed running northerly from the first curve in Jerome-ave on the west Many citizens and taxpayers of the district were present. Much opposition manifested itself against laying out College ave. Frank Loomis, counsel for the New-York and Harlem Railroad Company, argued that Commissioner Heintz was exceeding his authority In the present undertaking. The Board concluded to submit the point to Corporation Counsel Clark, and the hearing was adjourned to Friday, March 10, at noon.

THE DOG SHOW SUCCESSFUL.

CLOSE OF THE ANNUAL EXHIBITION. NET RECEIPTS AMOUNT TO $30,000-NOW FOR THE

POULTRY. The end of the dog show came late last night. after four days and nights of howis and barking. The exhibition merited success and gained it. No previous show of the Westminster Kennel Club had the advertising and the salary of the press agent, the agreeable and efficient Mr. Aidridge, amounted to about $9,000, making an expense account of $25,000. Over 55,000 persons passed through the doors of the Garden to see the dogs. Of these about 5,000 entered on complimentary tickets. rest paid $1 each, making $50,000 for admissions. The bar, programme and other privileges sold for about $5,000, which will make up the $30,000 profit.

It will be seen by these figures that the dog show is nearly as good an enterprise as the horse show. All the money earned by the Westminster Kennel Club goes into the pocket of no individual, but into the treasury of the organization. It is to be used for the improvement of the deg, in field trials and other sports which tend to take the standard of conine intelligence and general usefulness.

The next exhibition in the torden will be the poultry show, which opens on Taesday, February 29, and continues five days. Over 4,300 chickens have been entered for competition, and the barks of the dogs are not to be compared to the crowing and cackling of the cocks and hens.

Those who have made the show a study have learned the answer to the Important scientific ques-tion asked by Dr. Louis Robinson, in "The Contemporary Review"-Why do dogs wag their tails? Nothing could be simpler to a regular patron of the dog show. Dogs wag their talls because the talls can't wag their dogs. Why make so much fuss over so childish a problem?

Several dogs were removed from the show yesterday by their owners, who felt that they had borne the trial long enough. Most of the owners, however allowed their exhibits to remain till the show closed The Garden will be cleared to-day.

The primary object of the dog show is the im-provement of the breed of dogs. No man is going to fetch a favorite dog 1,000 miles for the mere chance of winning a prize of $10 or a piece of plate worth three or four times as much. What every owner of a dog wants is a record for his animal, and the a dog wants is a record for his animal, and the only place to get a record is the dog show. The better the record the higher the price of a breed. Of course, the owners are interested in dog shows from purely mercenary motives. They do not enter their dogs for fun. Some of them have been at great expense to get their entries here, and even then have failed to obtain a prize.

The trained dogs did their accustomed tricks, and the poor little monkey was again frightened almost to death. One of the dogs gave him a bite as he

NEARLY A DOZEN WIVES HE HAD.

A MUCH-MARRIED SOUTH CAROLINA COLONEL-BAILED OUT BY ONE OF HIS VICTIMS.

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 24 (Special),-Colonel A. E. Hagood, of Chicago, was brought here from Atlanta o day by the father of his sixteen-year old wife, Mr. Beaudrot, to answer a charge of bigamy. Colonel Hagoot had scarcely been enscenced within prison bars before there was a rush of wives from all paris of this State to this city. Thus far only two States outside of South Carolina have been heard from, Georgia and Illinois, the latter represented in the person of Mrs. Belle Hagood, of Chicago. When the Colonel was brought here only two wives were known to be in existence. In less than twenty-four hours nearly a dozen more have been beard from and the returns are not yet all in. Charleston furnishes three victims. One in Savannah seems to be the senior in rank as far as is at present known. She was married to him about twenty years ago in Graham ville, Barnwell County, and has borne him five chil dren, one of whom, an eighteen-year-old daughter, has been living with the Colonel. Before that period he had married a Miss Davis, in Waterbore, who bore blm four children and then died. The Colonel came to Charleston ten years ago and married a Miss Alley, the daughter of a rich undertaker here. Her witchood lasted about three weeks she is dead. He was next heard of at Pineopolis Berkeley County, where he went through some sort of marriage ceremony with a Miss Atkins. Then he was heard of in Vance's, Orangeburg County, where he was married again. After six or eight years he disppeared, and is supposed to have been married in Chicago, New-York and Philadelphia. Two years ago he returned to Charleston, and under the name of Coyle married a young widow, Mrs. Clancy, with whom he remained about three months. Then he want to Philadelphis and wrote to his levest wife that he had the grip, and that she must look out for the sunouncement came in due time. Seven months and religious to Charteston and married Miss Beaudrot. The date of his marriage to the Chicago wife is not known. One woman who followed him here is apparently wealthy, and has put up the money to ball him out. Hagood's Savannah wife, whose matden name was beeks, says that she paid him $200 a month. Hagood is related to General Johnson Hagood, a famous Confederate General of this State. He is shout slaty years old, and served in the Conwhom he remained about three months. Then he He is about sixty years old, and served in the Con federate Army. Bail for blm was fixed at $1,000 to day, which was advanced by his Chicago wife.

CHARLES DEXHEIMER SERIOUSLY ILL. CHARLES DEXHEIMER SERIOUSLY ILL.

Charles Dexheimer, a well-known real estate agent and lawyer, is seriously ill at his home, No. 68 East Thirdst. He is suffering from total collapse, due to overwork. Mr. Dexheimer is jopular on the East Side, where he has for many years been a prominent figure. The effort to attend to his large law practice and real estate business single handed is said to have broken him down to such an extent that it is forred his mind will give way. He has been under the care of Dr. Edward C. Spitzka, of No. 712 Lexington-ave, for the hast four months, but his condition has not improved, and it is foared that he will not recover his health. The trouble is not due to business lesses, as was at first feared, but it is said the marriage of his son, Charles Ir., troubled him greatly.
